

Newsletter for New Graduate Students Department of Mathematics

Early Summer 2024

Welcome to UK Mathematics! As a new graduate student, you are indeed a part of a talented group of students. We are excited to be part of your journey and hope the information in this Early Summer newsletter will make the beginning of graduate school a little smoother. You will receive another newsletter in mid-July with details on “start of program” information!

By now, or very soon, you should have received a letter from the Graduate School. Please complete any requests stated in this letter.

Set up your online accounts:

You will find your Student ID and the User ID in your Graduate School acceptance letter.

Activate your LinkBlue account (you will use this for registering for classes, viewing grades, and other student computing resources.) Go to: <https://newstudent.uky.edu/> If you need help setting up your account or email, please send an email to 218HELP@uky.edu or call 859-218-HELP (4357).

Find a place to live. If you have not yet arranged for housing in Lexington, you may be interested in a survey of our current graduate students about their impressions of various apartments and houses they have leased in the Lexington area – <https://www.ms.uky.edu/~gsc/resources.php> Occasionally there are current graduate students who may be looking for a roommate(s). If you are interested in this option, let me know and we will connect you. The University Housing Office also provides information about graduate student housing – both on-campus and off-campus <https://wildcatliving.uky.edu/graduate-and-family-housing>

International Students: Your letter from the Graduate School has information concerning the immigration process, preparing your visa documentation, and completing the international application.
